SHITO-RYU KARATE

Belt-wise Illustrated Syllabus

Punches • Blocks • Kicks • Elbow Techniques • Hand Techniques • Stances • Kata

Source: Revised Belt Syllabus dated 30 April 2024, supplied by the user.

Illustration note: The small figures are schematic category pictograms to help organize study. They are not exact photographic demonstrations of each named technique. Learn precise form, timing, stance, and application from a qualified Shito-Ryu instructor.

Spelling note: Technique names are preserved as written in the supplied syllabus where possible. Some romanized spellings may differ between dojos; confirm unclear terms with your instructor before grading.

How to use this manual

Each belt section reproduces the technique categories listed in the supplied syllabus. Empty cells mean the source sheet did not list a technique for that row; they do not mean the technique is prohibited or not taught.

| | |
|---|---|
| Punch | Tsuki / Zuki and fist strikes |
| Block | Uke / defensive receiving techniques |
| Kick | Geri / leg techniques |
| Elbow | Empi / elbow techniques |
| Hand | Hand techniques / signs such as Shuto, Nukite, Shotei |
| Stance | Dachi / body positions |

The source file has nine progression sections, from White to Yellow through Brown I to Shodan. The order below follows that document.

Training and grading checklist

- ■ Know the Japanese name and meaning of each technique.
- ■ Demonstrate the technique slowly before increasing speed.
- ■ Practise left and right sides where applicable.
- ■ Keep wrists aligned and avoid locking elbows or knees.
- ■ Use appropriate distance and control during partner drills.
- ■ Perform kata according to your instructor's version and grading requirements.
- ■ Ask your instructor to confirm any spelling or technique-name variation in the source syllabus.

Safety: This manual is a study aid, not a substitute for supervised instruction. Practise strikes and blocks with control; use suitable pads and qualified supervision for partner work.
